ACCOUNTING PROGRAMS MAY NEED CURRICULA UPDATES

There are major gaps in college accounting education today, with fewer than half of all programs teaching emerging topics, such as IT governance and cybersecurity, according to a new report by the American Institute of CPAs (AICPA) and National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA).

Accounting Program Curriculum Gap Analysis Report found mixed results for coverage of emerging and technology topics. While more than 60 percent of collegiate accounting programs are teaching topics like data analytics and IT audit, fewer programs cover cybersecurity, predictive analytics or System and Organization Controls (SOC). Each of these topics could be covered more in-depth on the CPA Exam in 2024, pending the results of the current Exam Practice Analysis.

"The accounting profession is becoming increasingly reliant on the use of emerging technologies, information systems and data analytics. Businesses are increasingly seeking technology-related services and advice and it's important for newly licensed CPAs to be adept in their knowledge, usage and skills," said Sue Coffey, CPA, CGMA, CEO – Public Accounting, AICPA. "Accounting programs have a responsibility to assure their curricula and course offerings are setting students up for success in the profession."

The report, which includes responses from more than 300 collegiate accounting programs, was intended to gain a broad picture of how accounting programs have incorporated new technology and other critical skills within their current curricula, especially as the AICPA and NASBA CPA Evolution initiative advances. The AICPA Governing Council and NASBA Board of Directors voted to advance CPA Evolution, which is intended to transform the CPA licensure model to better recognize the rapidly changing skills, competencies and technology knowledge required of CPAs. These skills will be reflected in the new Uniform CPA Exam in 2024.

“The gap analysis also has implications for State Boards of Accountancy,” said Dan Dustin, CPA, Vice President, State Board Relations, at NASBA. “It’s an opportunity for boards to review their current education rules and update them to align with the future of the CPA profession and the types of skills and tools that new licensees will be using as they begin their careers.”

Dustin noted that several state boards are already reviewing their standards for accreditation and what material should be taught in an accounting concentration.

Gaps in Technology Topics Exist

Though many schools are including technology topics within their programs, few offer in-depth education on each topic, with smaller programs even less likely to address them.

The report found that few programs offer extensive coverage of topics such as predictive analytics or SOC or skills such as digital acumen or understanding information security processes. Rather, they often touch on them in one or two class sessions in their Accounting Information Systems class, raising the possibility students aren’t receiving in-depth instruction on these critical topics.

The report also found substantial disparities by program size. Accounting programs with 50 or fewer majors are addressing core accounting knowledge and skills, including audit and tax, but are often not providing much of the technology-focused material the profession demands. Only 15 percent of these institutions are incorporating digital acumen into their curricula while just over 30 percent are teaching cyber-related and predictive analytics topics.

The report comes after the AICPA’s 2019 Trends in the Supply of Accounting Graduates and the Demand for Public Accounting Recruits found that firms were increasingly hiring non-accounting majors to meet demand for advanced technology skills.

Opportunities for Accounting Faculty

AICPA has developed resources to help collegiate accounting programs enhance their curricula as the profession transitions under the new CPA Evolution licensure model. The Academic Resource Hub offers case studies, assignments, readings and webinars to help accounting educators ensure students are prepared to meet the needs of the marketplace. The Faculty Hour webcast series will provide CPA Evolution status updates and discussions on how to integrate data analytics, as well as systems and technology-related subject matter into accounting curricula.

In June 2021, AICPA and NASBA, with support of the American Accounting Association, will unveil a model curriculum to guide faculty in addressing the accounting coursework needed by those pursuing licensure under the new CPA Evolution model.

LICENSING REPORT FROM OXFORD ECONOMICS

For years, professional associations and regulatory boards lacked hard data that demonstrated the value of licensing. In 2020, the Alliance for Responsible Professional Licensing (ARPL) sought to fill that information gap by commissioning Oxford Economics to help better understand the nuanced impacts of licensing on professions and trade and vocational occupations. Valuing Professional Licensing in the United States includes a number of key findings:

- Across all professions and occupations, licensing is associated with a 6.5% average increase in hourly earnings, even after accounting for the job holder’s educational attainment, gender, and racial demographics.
- Among professionals in technical fields requiring significant education and training, a license narrows the gender-driven wage gap by about one third and the race-driven wage gap by about half.

- Those in trade and vocational occupations can expect a 7.1% hourly wage increase after becoming licensed, while those in a profession requiring advanced education and training can expect a 3.6% wage increase after becoming licensed.

Marta Zaniewski, VP for State Regulatory and Legislative Affairs for AICPA, summarizes the findings well: “Licensing impacts professions, occupations, and populations differently and is a clear driver of higher wages and stronger economies... These critical insights must be acknowledged as part of any thoughtful consideration of licensing policy.”

This report will be an important asset in our advocacy and communications efforts in 2021 and beyond. To that end, ARPL has created a central communications resource (<https://bit.ly/3thWyDW>), providing tools and resources to help you leverage the report and its findings in your efforts on the ground.
